

RESIDENT GUIDE PROCEDURES FOR LICENSE ISSUANCE

STATUTORY AUTHORITY:

Wyoming Statute § 23-2-401 (b).

Any resident possessing a valid resident big or trophy game animal license may apply for and receive a resident guide license. The resident guide license shall be issued without charge or bond by the commission, any district supervisor or resident game warden upon receipt of an affidavit from the resident stating the names and addresses of the nonresident hunters to be guided, the game to be hunted, the area to be hunted, and that the resident has not received nor will accept directly or indirectly any compensation for his services as a guide. A resident guide shall not guide more than two (2) nonresident hunters in any calendar year on any national forest, wilderness area, national game refuge, or national park, except as provided in W.S. 23-2-401, nor shall he accept any compensation or gratuity for his services. An exchange of guide services shall not be considered compensation for the purposes of this section. The name and license number of the nonresident hunter shall be placed on the back of the resident guide license and stamped or signed by the issuer.

Big game animal is defined as: antelope, bighorn sheep, deer, elk, moose or mountain goat.

Trophy game animal is defined as: black bear, grizzly bear or mountain lion AND gray wolves within any area of the state where gray wolves are classified as trophy game animals by commission regulation.

Authority for License Issuance:

Resident Guide licenses may be issued at Cheyenne Headquarters Office and all Department Regional Offices using the iPOS system. Resident Guide licenses may also be issued using manual license documents in the field by game wardens. There is no paper application for this product.
